U OF A SURVEY AIMS TO IMPROVE LEARNING SPACE

by Shelley Babich

Getting cataracts from squinting from the back of your lecture theatre? Experiencing the need to shout out questions to your profs from the back of sardine can-sized classrooms? These may sound like petty details, but the environment in which we learn may have a considerable impact on the quality of our education, according to experts at the University of Alberta.

The U of A's Planning and Development department wonders whether classrooms accommodate teaching methods and learning styles of the present and future. They have begun a study of University learning space which is expected to take about two years.

The project started last June with a proposal to the Students' Union from Planning and Development's Elizabeth Dechert. Recommendations from the survey to alter or improve classroom space will be considered in November. The benefits of this survey will not be noticed until the 1997/98 school year.

Through meetings with students and staff, items such as classroom size, furniture, lighting, and the increasing numbers of students per class were discussed. For example, professors in the health and mathematical sciences find the introduction of computer-based learning useful. This has been partially realized by the $900,000 designated last year towards the enhancement of campus computer labs.

However, certain departments still prefer to use traditional "chalk and board" teaching methods. Different departments have noticed different needs in terms of classroom structure and organization.

Students have called attention to some interesting classroom conditions. For example, in the Education building there is no match between class size and room size (ie. 40 people in a 60 capacity room) and in some classrooms many seats have no view whatsoever. CAB classrooms are often overcrowded and many students find it difficult to hear the professor because of noise transmission between rooms.

Students also need more time to move between buildings in the winter, which has brought up a need for more indoor building links. There have also been complaints about the independently minded clocks and the icy cold comfort of the V-wing.

Minor alterations in seating, lighting and heating are the most likely elements to be considered for renovation. Because many students find news groups and distance learning useful, the University may invest in more high-tech classrooms that are equipped for multi-media presentation and interaction. Health Sciences would like to see fibre optics in the classrooms to link to various hospitals and clinics, and medical students are interested in learning on laptops and CD-ROM software.

But traditionalists need not worry: many instructors also prefer classical teaching styles, especially smaller classes and one-on-one time with students. According to SU vice president academic Karen Schiltroth, "There will always be two streams of teaching and learning, one that will embrace technology and one that does not feel the need for it. Technology will not replace traditional teaching methods ... there still exists a need to maintain tradition."

In the meantime, it seems squinting and shouting will have to do.

Out of the mouths of students ...

We asked U of A students what they think of classroom space on campus. Here are some of the responses:

"Most of the classrooms are big enough, though the ones in Tory are kind of small for the number of people they're cramming in there. And I hate the icky fluorescent lighting."

-David Hughes,
Political Science II.

"Because we're engineers, we'd at least like to have Mechanical Engineering connected to Chemistry, or Chemistry to Physics. It would also help to see Tory connected to Earth Sciences."

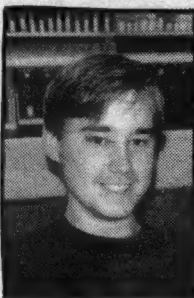

-Alfred Lau, Engineering III

"I have a problem with Tory Lecture. I have no leg room. People are climbing all over me to get into the centre seats."

-Annette Stupar, Arts III

"There's a lot of people in my classes but that's to be expected because they're first year courses. Class size doesn't bother me."

-Scott Sutherland, Science I

"Right now we can get from Civil-Electrical Engineering to Dentistry because they're pretty much in the same room."

-Dale Pethick,
Engineering III

"I find it very hot in Tory Lecture in the afternoon after the people have been through there all day."

-Shauna Price, Zoology IV

"I've noticed that there are no left-handed desks in a lot of the buildings. In Chem 160, people have to sit in the aisles because there's not enough room."

-Janet Melnyk, Engineering I

"[I haven't had problems] in Poli Sci - the classes are pretty small. The Tory Atrium doesn't have nearly enough space to sit in ... I've noticed there's a little more study space this year than last year."

-Stacy Martz, Political Science IV

The Greeks go Online!

Of all the students groups on campus, there is one group of groups that stand out the most. These are fraternities. While other students groups like the Arts Students' Association, the Chess Club and the Star Trek Club have a clear purpose, a fraternity's purpose has a little more mystique. This week, I am going to give you a guide to what makes a good fraternity website and give you all a chance to review them yourselves.

Why Make a Website?

A fraternity should have a good, clear vision in mind when creating a web site. The desire to have a presence on the Web is not a good reason to put up a website. A good fraternity website is a method of communication for members and alumni. It should be updated regularly with information for members and non-members.

The fraternity experience has to be seen to be believed. All text and no pictures make for a dull web site experience. Pictures humanize a web site and provide more detail than is possible with descriptions. Remember, a picture is worth a thousand words!

What's Happening?

Lots of events regularly happen in the Greek system, and it sometimes gets hard to keep track of when and where they are occurring. A good fraternity web site will list its public and interfraternity events with information so that its own members and other fraternities will be informed.

Who's there?

One of the biggest things about fraternities is their members. After all, fraternity means "brotherhood". There should be information in each fraternity's web site on how to contact members. A nice touch to a fraternity website is a list of members with contact e-mail addresses. Phone numbers of each member should be avoided, however; that is giving out too much information.

Greek Central

There are hundreds of fraternity websites world-wide. The best resource on the web that I have found for fraternity information is www.greekpages.com. They are extremely organized and it is easy to find any fraternity you want to check out.

If you are interested in checking out the websites of fraternities on campus, check them out at these addresses:

Bound For Guyana

U of A students work towards international development

by Lauren Podlubny

Two University of Alberta students who are looking to help make the world a better place need the help of the student body.

24-year-old commerce graduate

"For me, it's to find some kind of direction in life. I've done all the things society says you have to do to find fulfillment, but I haven't found it yet."

- Robin Schlese, YCI participant

Robin Schlese and second-year Arts student Emma Johnston are going to the South American country of Guyana for three months as part of a 27-member team of youth from across Canada. The trip, called the Guyana X project, is organized by Youth Challenge International, an organization that promotes co-operation between nations.

"I can't believe we're really going. It's something I've always dreamed about," said Jennifer Murray, a YCI volunteer who is accompanying Schlese and Johnston on the trip.

The participants will be contributing to the development of the communities they are placed in through work involving many different projects. Their goal is to work together to offset problems in developing regions of the world like Guyana. Some of the projects include the construction of schools and community centres, environmental research for rain forests and wildlife, and a medical program in which they will assist in sight restoring operations.

Schlese and Johnston were chosen from a list of applicants who wrote an essay about community development. The next step was a survival weekend, held at Camp Chief Hector near Canmore, to test their adaptability to hardship and their ability to work with others as a team in a difficult environment. Initially, it felt "a little strange, a little awkward" at the camp, said Schlese. "You have no idea what will be expected of you." He added that the close quarters built camaraderie among the participants: "It's amazing how close you can feel to people you don't even know."

Johnston also felt the weekend was beneficial. "When we did our [weekend camp] it was minus 20 and we were sleeping outside in a tarp that we built with ten other people that you've known for only 36 hours ... but after a short while I felt really close, really comfortable."

Murray said the weekend gave

her great confidence: "At times, I felt like I could accomplish anything, and I needed that, because it was pretty challenging."

The participants' reasons for wanting to participate in the YCI program vary. "It's different for every person ... for me, it's to find some kind of direction in life. I've done all the things society says you have to do to find fulfillment, but I haven't found it yet," said Schlese. Johnston is looking forward to a career in community development, and hopes to gain valuable experience through the Guyana trip.

Once selected for the trip, the participants need to raise the funding for 80 per cent of their travel expenses by themselves, amounting to $3,750 for each participant. In addition to each team member's personal efforts to raise funds, there will be a YCI fundraiser at the Rebar on Tuesday, September 17 at 8:30 pm. The show, featuring local bands Jaded and 308, has a $3 cover charge, with 50 per cent of the proceeds going to Schlese and Murray's travel funds.

FIVE YEARS AGO (Volume 81, September 12, 1991)

- The national postal strike comes to SUB: the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, embroiled in a bitter strike that lasts several weeks, set up information pickets at the SU Postal outlet. The dispute is over the privatization of postal services and reductions in door-to-door postal service.

- The SU runs out of handbooks in the first week of classes. After having a surplus the year before, the SU prints only 15,000 handbooks in 1991-92 at a cost of $50,000, then refuses to spend an extra $12,000 to print an additional 1000 handbooks.

- SU vp external Randy Boissonault suggests that the campus liquor licence be extended to allow campus bars to stay open two hours later. The move is suggested in an effort to curb students drinking and driving.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO (Volume 71, September 10, 1981)

- The Students' Union debt reaches an all-time high of $1 million. The overdraft is covered by the University finance department. The debt forces prices at campus bars to rise. Domestic beer prices at RATT and Friday's (now Dewey's) rose from 90 cents to $1.25.

- In a study done by the Manpower University counselling office, graduates in computing science and engineering have the greatest chance of finding employment within one year after graduating, with a shortage of engineers expected in the coming years. Nursing, pharmacy, law and medicine grads also report placement rates near 100 percent in Edmonton.

FORTY YEARS AGO (Volume 47, September 28, 1956)

- The first increase in tuition in five years is enacted by the University of Alberta. President Andrew Stewart pointed out that the increase brought the level of fees at the U of A in line with other western universities, though tuition in the east was "generally and substantially higher." The average net increase in tuition and fees totalled $7 per year per student.

- Randy Wiebe, a 1956 U of A Arts graduate, is announced the winner of the short story contest sponsored by the National Federation of Canadian University Students for his story "The Midnight ride of an Albertan." Wiebe would go on to be the only Canadian ever to be a two-time winner of the Governor-General's award for fiction and served as writer-in-residence and professor of English at the U of A.

STUDENTS' ACCESS FUND UPDATE

During the 1995/96 academic year, the Access Fund Board awarded $312,632.00 to 308 students in financial need.

What's new?

Access Fund bursary applications are now available from the Students' Union receptionist, room 2900 SUB and from the Student Financial Aid and Information Centre, room 2700 SUB.

Who's eligible?

1. Current U of A students in a program leading to a degree who have paid SU fees.
2. Students with demonstrated financial need based on a modest standard of living and Access Fund guidelines.
3. Students who have borrowed the maximum available in Government Student Loans or who don't have access to such funds. We expect you to have exhausted all other means.
4. Students who have paid into the Access Fund (students who opt out are not eligible).
5. Students with satisfactory academic standing (as determined by faculty)
6. Students with no previous government student loan defaults.

What if I don't meet the above criteria but still am in financial need?

Students who do not meet the above criteria and wish to be considered must submit a letter with their application, detailing their exceptional circumstances.

How do I apply?

When you pick up an application read through the information brochure. If you think you may be eligible, book an appointment with the Access Fund Coordinator to submit your application. Appointments are booked at the SU reception desk, Room 2900 SUB.

This appointment gives you an opportunity to explain your situation in person and to sign the statutory declaration.

You must bring :

- your completed application form
- your Notice of Assessment from your student loan
- your U of A ID card
- and, if necessary, your letter in support of application

We will be unable to process your application without these items.

Why all the picky criteria and paperwork?

The Access Fund is made up of your contributions. (You pay $11.03 per semester, 85% goes to bursaries, 10% to an endowment fund and 5% for administrative costs.) We want to meet the needs of students, but at the same time need to remain accountable to the students who have paid into the fund. Don't you want to be sure your money goes to those who need it most?

Who can answer my questions?

Call the Students' Union at 492-4236 or email us at accessfund@pybus.su.ualberta.ca

What are the deadlines?

The application deadline for this semester is October 4. Cheques will be available November 7.

Bursaries will also be disbursed next semester. Watch the Gateway for more info.

Council Digest

Highlights of this week's Students' Council Meeting

by Mary Pinkoski

Council Digest is a new feature that will be appearing regularly in the Gateway. It will contain a summary of the issues discussed at Students' Council meetings. These stories are from the September 10 meeting.

NOW PLAYING AT THE POWER PLANT: THE STUDENTS' UNION

Students' Council has made plans to take over the lease on the Power Plant restaurant and bar.

The decision came after the Graduate Students' Association asked the University to buy them out of their lease.

"We are still negotiating with the University on how much it would cost," said Students' Union president Garrett Poston.

The Power Plant could be used as another form of revenue for the SU.

If the SU is successful in purchasing the bar, no major changes in operation are expected. However, the SU does have some ideas for improving the atmosphere.

"We have some definite ideas on the entertainment and service," said Poston, who would not elaborate on potential changes because of the ongoing negotiations.

The SU is currently presenting their proposal to the University administration and to Housing and Food Services. A resolution is expected within the next few weeks.

"I see the Power Plant as a profitable venture," added Poston.

As far as Poston is aware, there are no other competitors bidding for the Power Plant.

STUDENTS JOIN FUNDRAISING CAMPAIGN

In the midst of the University's plan to embark on its largest-ever fundraising campaign, the Students' Union has decided how they will make their mark.

The campaign, which is set to begin next April, is hoped to bring in approximately $140 million in total.

"This is one of the largest campaign in Canada and the largest campaign in the University's history," said SU president Garrett Poston.

The SU has set out two proposals on how they can offer students a chance to contribute. The first option is to allow the campaign to include the SU Access Fund, which will give students a chance to opt out of the fundraising campaign. The second idea is to place the initiative to contribute on the shoulders of the faculties.

"We would encourage the faculties to charge a fee to their students, similar to what the Engineering students pay," said Poston.

The money that students pay would go towards improving some aspect of their faculty, directly contributing to make learning better for them. The priorities for spending would be student-directed.

Poston stressed that it would be the choice of each faculty to contribute and that contributions would not be mandatory.

"No one here has to contribute, but I think that it makes a lot of sense," said Poston.

If the second option is chosen, each faculty will have to hold a plebiscite in order to gain the students' approval to charge the fee.

Lowdown on Libraries

Changes made to improve service to students

by Celina Connolly

As some returning students have already discovered, the libraries at the University of Alberta have changed the way they serve you. And according to Kathleen DeLong, associate director of administration for libraries, "it is going to make a big difference to students."

The changes are varied and were all done to make the system easier and more efficient for students. DeLong points out that "students need to be able to use their time efficiently."

One of the most obvious will be the lack of date due stamps in each individual book. Instead, librarians will give users date due reminder slips. This system is the same as the one currently used by Edmonton Public Libraries. Information about due dates will also be available on the INFOGATE system, which has been in use since last year.

Another change is a method by which students can renew books from home even if they don't have a computer or modem. "We are now offering telephone renewal through library circulation desks," explains DeLong. Books still can be renewed through the INFOGATE library computer system.

One important change may have an effect on students who continually forget to bring their books back to the library. Instead of allowing for unlimited renewals by phone or computer, students can now only renew books four times. To renew a given book a fifth time, they have to bring the book back in person to a circulation desk.

"Another big [change] is the nine electronic databases that have been added," adds DeLong. This increases the number of databases available on the GATE computer system to 25. Several more are available only through CD-ROM in specific libraries such as Education or Med-Sci.

Confused by the library system? The U of A Libraries hope to solve that through a wide spread training campaign across campus. DeLong explains, "We did a large training program at registration...and will be offering more library training programs beginning in mid-September." Students looking for more information about these training sessions can ask about them at any library reference or information desk. "We also have handouts at the library and have been trying to get them out at the [SU] Info desks."

Students who know how to use a computer can read all about these changes at the U of A Libraries' Web Site at <http://www.library.ualberta.ca/library.html>. "All the information is on the web page." Also at the web site is a trial version of a web interface of the GATE catalogue.

While these changes may seem sudden to students, they University has been looking at them for a while. "They have been a long time in discussion. It brings together five service points into three. It is much better for students," said DeLong.

According to DeLong, many students seem to agree. "Students seem to appreciate the telephone renewal [system]."

Rutherford librarian Faye Maxwell agrees that the changes have been good, even though there have been some growing pains while students get used to the new changes. "I think it's going to work out quite well in the long run. Short term pain for long term gain."

AGING GUY

There are people playing hacky sack in Quad. I feel old.

Hacky sack was a phenomenon which invaded the high schools just after I left them. I remember going back to my alma mater to laugh at the students (and teachers) still trapped there, and having to break through gaggles of pony-tailed, nose-pierced grade tens who were, to my mind, playing a lazy kind of soccer with a ball that had been through the wash too many times. These were the kids I associated with grunge fashions, toques and Nirvana. I never imagined they'd end up following me to University. They didn't seem to have the discipline, or the stamina, or even the interest in pursuing that sort of education. They struck me as aimless neo-hippies with bad attitudes.

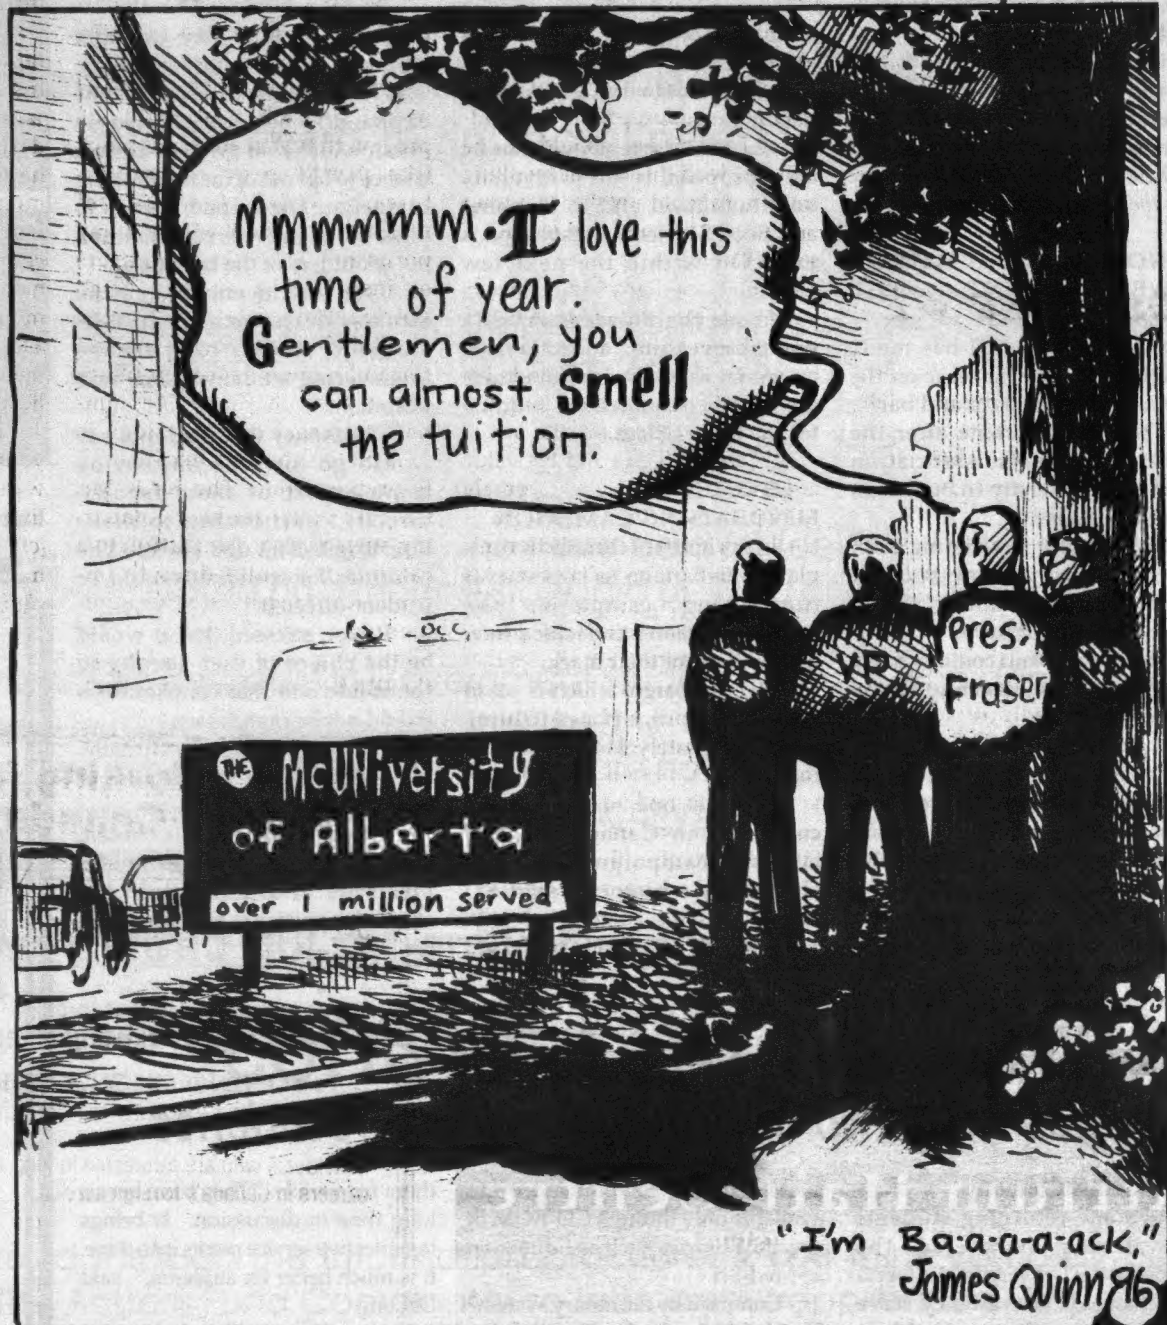

But it seems they've finally tracked me down. I don't know if the work ethic has improved, or if the attitudes have gone away. If nothing else, fashion sense seems to be on the rise.

Of course, it's entirely possible that people have been hacky sacking in Quad for the entirety of my four years here, and I've just been too self-absorbed to notice. It's also possible that all my comments about grunge kids are gross generalizations, stereotyped based on age and encouraged by the attitudes conveyed by the mass media. Actually, it's more than possible—it's utterly true. It was just a shame that those younger than I had to make it to University before they earned my respect.

Boy, do I feel like a schmuck. An old schmuck.

Welcome to the U of A, young'uns. Make yourselves at home. Join the Hacky Sack Club, or the Nirvana Club, or—hell—knock me out again and join the Chess Club. I deserve it. I only ask that, when you see the old coot raving in Quad about the good old days when soccer balls were bigger than your fist, be kind to him. He really does have the best of intentions.

Rush response

This letter is in response to the article by L.A. Craggs which warned students of the perils of joining a fraternity. I would like to begin by saying how disappointed I am with the Gateway for allowing an article so full of misinformation to be printed in their otherwise well researched newspaper. Mr. Craggs has obviously never taken part in any fraternity activities or he would have seen that all his ideas about us are wild misconceptions. Perhaps someone down at the Gateway can use a crowbar to pry his mind open so he can learn something from this letter.

Fraternities do perform lots of community service and I can't see why you'd fault us for this. Sure you can join up with community service groups outside of a fraternity but most of us do not. Having a fraternity take part provides an incentive for its members to participate in activities that they might not have otherwise considered. And this is not why you pay fraternity dues.

While we're on the subject of fraternity dues, they are not paid so you can do community service nor are they bribes to people so that they will be your friends; dues are to help ensure that the fraternity can continue to operate and provide services to its members. That house isn't free, we all have to chip in to pay for utilities and upkeep which is where a large chunk of our dues go. We also use dues for a variety of purposes none of which include paying for friendship or buying gay porn. Mr. Craggs has put a very negative spin on Rush week, and I would encourage all students to come out and take a look at the fraternities and decide for yourself. If you decide to join us, then that's great and we're happy to have you. If not, then we will still talk to you and won't hunt you down like a dog, as some columnists would have you believe.

Mr. Craggs, you too are invited to come take a look at the houses and what we have to offer.

Maybe if you take the time to actually learn the facts about fraternities your next article will be a little more accurate and who knows, maybe you'll actually like us?

Response #2

Dear Editor:

L.A. Craggs' opinion article, "Don't Rush" (09/10/96), reveals a lack of research skills, a bias which overflows into offensiveness, and an ineptitude at writing.

The fundamental flaw in the article is his failure to research his subject. For example, he neglects to mention how he knows that fraternity members spend their 'academic careers passed out drunk' and how fraternities allegedly ostracize non-members. Moreover, Craggs' information is inaccurate and misleading. All fraternities require members to have the minimum G.P.A. of the University and the women's fraternities do not allow alcohol on the premises of the fraternity houses. There are also innumerable examples of people who have resigned from fraternities but remained friendly with members.

Craggs' tone is exceedingly offensive, not merely to fraternities, but to homosexuals as well. His description of fraternity parties as a 'set of a gay porno movie: lots of sexually frustrated guys standing around' is inappropriate. The readers of The Gateway should not be inflicted with this sort of insulting smut, nor should any student group on campus be subjected to such a smear campaign.

Finally, perhaps Craggs needs a remedial English course. A better written, logical article would have been more effective. As it stands, his grammar is deplorable (dangling prepositions, colloquialisms, swear words, use of 'you') and his value judgments very personal ('you are truly pathetic'). The greatest problem lies in his self-contradiction; his vituperative draws solely from his own emotions, not logic. He sets his topic as exposing the 'false promises' of fraternities, but shows that their promises are real (philanthropies and academics). Then, he launches off on the tangent that the 'real reason' why people join is the social life. Guilty as accused. Therefore, fraternities meet all of the promises that they make, and Craggs' argument collapses.

Reponse #3

Ah Mr. Craggs, how wonderful it is to read such a tactfully written article ("Don't Rush" — Gateway opinion; 9/10/96). Your use of such phrases as: "Frats prey on first year students much like pimps prey on prostitutes..." and "...[parties are] reminiscent of the set of a gay porno movie..." really delivers on insightful journalism. Such statements don't say much of the credibility of your argument, and certainly doesn't speak volumes about your character. To compare fraternal organizations to "...a bit like the Ku Klux Klan..." is preposterous. The KKK Mr. Craggs? I can't see how comparing such a vile organization to a campus fraternity does to improve the integrity of your argument. As well, "...a bit..." ??? Something cannot be "a bit like the [KKK]", it either is or it isn't.

It's that simple. It's comparable to saying that a woman is just a little bit pregnant.

Your intention to sway the minds of students, who may be interested in joining a fraternity, with your argument will most definitely backfire on you as I have a hard time seeing any member of the U of A student body or faculty taking your article seriously. Surely it will not have a detrimental effect on our membership recruitment drive. The use of slanderous statements, Mr. Craggs, certainly does little to support your argument.

I will however fully agree with your final statement. "If you really want to make something of your university life, play intramurals, join a club, volunteer, or engage in many (free) social activities on campus." In short, join a fraternity.

Working for Canada

JOIN CANADA'S FOREIGN SERVICE

Have you considered this challenging and exciting career?

This year, the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade and the Department of Citizenship and Immigration are seeking individuals who are interested in long-term careers in Canada's foreign service.

To apply, you must be a Canadian citizen and you must possess a post-graduate degree (Master's or other graduate degree) in any field, or a Bachelor of Law degree (LLB, BDL or LLL) from a recognized university by June 30, 1997. You may apply if you have a university degree in another discipline at the Bachelor's level, but you must also have significant experience in international commerce or an acceptable level of language proficiency in either Japanese, Mandarin, Arabic, Russian or Korean. Knowledge of a third language, especially German or Spanish, is an important asset and is recognized in the selection process.

To obtain further information and/or an application form, please visit your campus career centre, the nearest office of the Public Service Commission of Canada or a Canadian diplomatic mission abroad.

Completed applications must be submitted to the Public Service Commission of Canada or a Canadian diplomatic mission abroad by Friday, October 4, 1996.

The Public Service Commission of Canada is the agency responsible for recruitment to the federal public service. Our mission is to ensure that Canadians are served by a highly competent public service that is non-partisan and representative of Canadian society.

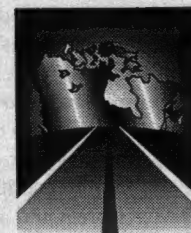

We thank all those who apply and advise that only those selected for further consideration will be contacted.

We are committed to Employment Equity.

LE SERVICE EXTÉRIEUR DU CANADA, POURQUOI PAS?

Rêvez-vous d'une carrière stimulante et exigeante?

Cette année, le ministère des Affaires étrangères et du Commerce international, de concert avec le ministère de la Citoyenneté et de l'Immigration, recherche des personnes intéressées à entreprendre une longue carrière au sein du Service extérieur du Canada.

Pour postuler, vous devez être citoyenne canadienne ou citoyen canadien et obtenir, d'ici le 30 juin 1997, un diplôme de deuxième cycle (maîtrise ou autre) dans n'importe quelle discipline, ou un baccalauréat en droit (LLB, BDC ou LLL) d'une université reconnue. Vous pouvez également postuler si vous possédez un baccalauréat dans une autre discipline, mais vous devez avoir une bonne expérience du commerce international ou faire preuve d'un niveau de compétence jugé acceptable en japonais, mandarin, arabe, russe ou coréen. La connaissance d'une troisième langue, particulièrement l'allemand ou l'espagnol, est un atout important et sera considérée au moment de la sélection.

Pour obtenir de plus amples renseignements ou vous procurer un formulaire de demande d'emploi, veuillez vous rendre au bureau d'emploi de votre campus ou à un bureau de la Commission de la fonction publique du Canada, ou encore à une mission diplomatique du Canada à l'étranger.

Veuillez présenter votre demande dûment remplie à la Commission de la fonction publique du Canada ou à une mission diplomatique du Canada à l'étranger d'ici le vendredi 4 octobre 1996.

La Commission de la fonction publique du Canada est l'organisme responsable du recrutement à la fonction publique fédérale. Notre mission, à la fonction publique, consiste à garantir aux Canadiennes et aux Canadiens un service hautement compétent, assuré par une administration fédérale impartiale et représentative de la société canadienne.

Nous remercions tous ceux et celles qui soumettent leur candidature; nous ne communiquerons qu'avec les personnes choisies pour la prochaine étape.

Hemp is Dope

On Labour Day, I attended a Hemp Rally at the legislative grounds and were it not for the shitty weather, perhaps more people would have shown up. Why make excuses though, the truth is, people are scared. And why the hell shouldn't they be? Bill C-8, the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act became law on June 19, 1996. The new law increases police search powers by enabling them to arbitrarily search Canadians and by allowing the police to search anyone on the premises while a search is being carried out. Furthermore, it drastically increases seizure powers so that property used to commit these so-called crimes, such as growing equipment, is more easily retrieved by the government. The new law not only encourages the police to hire dealers to become the definition of marijuana. Sorry ma'am, you can't cultivate indus-

Bill C-8, the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act became law on June 19, 1996. The new law increases police search powers by enabling them to arbitrarily search Canadians and by allowing the police to search anyone on the premises while a search is being carried out. informants, it also allows cocaine and heroine to be used legally as medicine, while marijuana is strictly prohibited for medical use. Unfortunately, there was also no attempt on the government's part to include a provision allowing for the industrial cultivation of hemp. Instead (as if this is any consolation) the committee recommended that the raw fibre used in hemp fabrics and papers be exempt from trial hemp, but now you're allowed to wear hemp clothing. Gee, thanks.

This summer a gentleman from Regina by the name of Grant Krieger got busted by Dutch officials for attempting to import a small quantity of marijuana into Canada for medical use. When Krieger attempted to get a prescription for marijuana from his family doctor in Regina, his request was refused so he obtained a legal prescription from a doctor in Holland. No doubt Canadian authorities (who Krieger had informed before he left for Amsterdam) tipped off the Dutch police of his arrival in Holland and he was hauled to the slammer just before boarding a jet set for Toronto. Dutch authorities rarely bust pot smuggling operations, so why this one you ask. It is a clear attempt to relieve themselves of foreign pressure, in this case, Canadian, and to satisfy neighbouring nations. This way both parties are happy, that is, the Dutch government has kissed the Canadian government's ass and I'm certain the Canadian government will find some way to repay them for their "services". After all is said and done, my questions are: Why is marijuana use still prohibited in Canada? Why can't a suffering MS patient, namely Krieger, smoke a joint to ease his pain?

Why has Bill C-8 become law with no opposition from the Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs (the majority of whom spoke publicly of their support for the decriminalization of marijuana)? And why, oh, why, is it that I can not purchase hemp seed (second only to soybeans in their total protein content) at my local supermarket? I picked up a quote that day from a man by the name of Max Cornellson who spoke to us at the Hemp Rally. He said, "We tumble towards troubled times, the worst we ever saw, but hemp can change the world you see, so we must change the law."

FRATERNITIES

An opinion by Mike Mears

Well it's obvious the Gateway's Luke Anthony Craggs (Re; DON'T RUSH, Sept. 10) is in fine form again this year. Unfortunately, his idea of form involves writing nonsensical pieces, based solely on fanciful beliefs. It is not just that Craggs ignores fact, but also that he does not seek it.

I may as well be the first to inform all the first-year students about L.A. Craggs. He is an opinionist. He writes with one goal only—to provoke emotion and receive attention. Well, the brazen Craggs has definitely got the attention of all fraternities on campus.

First Mr. Craggs, if I may address you, why all the hostility towards fraternities? What have we done to spite you so? Your opinions concerning fraternities, which bordered on slanderous, had more venom than argument. If we've pissed you off in any way, why not bring it up with us, rather than proceed with a personal agenda aimed at hurting us as a group?

And where do you get off calling us conformists and suggesting that our goal is to assimilate others? You obviously have no contact or experience with fraternities, otherwise you would have never made such a blanket statement. Anyone in, or associated with, a fraternity knows the truth—that fraternity men and women are very diverse students with multiple (and differing) interests and goals. Saying that we have no individuality simply because we belong to the same group is as ignorant, no stupid, as saying that all Gateway writers are assholes, Mr. Craggs.

Students, I'm not going to argue that you can't volunteer or be successful in your studies and social life without being part of a fraternity. All that takes is some work and dedication. However, Craggs' assertion that fraternity men and women "pay" for friends is disturbing (though admittedly, it is a statement that plagues fraternities). Fraternity dues vary, but it works out to little more than a dollar a day during winter and spring sessions. This pittance (about the cost of a coffee and a newspaper) allows the fraternity member access to a house at any hour, use of floor" what can we say but that situation is certainly not the case. I won't say that we don't party and have a good time on occasion, but I would find it hard to believe that we drink to the point of excess any more than the general student populace. And further, when we do decide to have some fun and party it is often at respective fraternity houses or within walking distance from them. That way if it's late and a brother or sister has drank in excess, they have a safe haven to go and spend the night.

Craggs then go on to say that if you (potential members), "do not conform to the rules or attempt to leave after your induction, you will be forever ostracized by the fraternity community." Huh? What conformity to what rules? Ostracized? Maybe I've been living under a rock because I've never experienced or witnessed that. Besides, the exodus of people from fraternities once they have initiated is virtually nil. This is because of all the benefits fraternities produce. The networking alone (which is very helpful in finding employment now and in the future), should be enough reason for those students concerned with their success to join and stay in a fraternity.

After reading Craggs' opinion piece it would be an understatement to say that he knows little about what he writes. About the only thing one can deduce from it is that he seems to know a lot more about gay porno than fraternities.

...why all the hostility towards fraternities? What have we done to spite you so?

a kitchen (appreciated when one tires of the Versa "food" on campus), parking, reduced (if any) charge for intramural sports, and yes, of course, low costs for social events (which really are good despite Craggs' propaganda).

Oh, and as far as Craggs' claim that we conveniently choose not to mention those members who spend their academic careers "passed out drunk on the house

Applicants must be registered full-time in both the fall and winter terms in order to apply for these scholarships. Deadline for receipt of applications in the Student Awards Office is 15 October, 1996.

Universiade '83 Scholarships

Forty five scholarships valued at $2500 each will be awarded to students attending the University of Alberta full-time on the basis of excellence in athletics or fine arts and superior academic achievement. This competition is open to students entering the University of Alberta from high school, students transferring from other post secondary institutions and students returning to the University of Alberta after completing at least one year. Undergraduate students enrolled in less than a full-normal course load are allowed to apply once they have accumulated the equivalent of a full-normal course load (ie. 30 credits).

Students may apply for the above scholarship by completing the University of Alberta Universiade '83 Scholarship Application Form which is available from the office of Student awards, 103 Administration building. Deadline for receipt of application is 15 October, 1996.

Rhodes Scholarships

Eleven Rhodes Scholarships are now open for Canadian students and will be awarded in late November. These Scholarships are tenable at the University of Oxford, England and their value is at least £12,000 per year. They are granted for two years with the possibility of a third year. Scholars may follow their own choice of study and are required to attend Oxford in October 1997. Selection is made on the basis of school and college records without written examinations. The qualities which will be considered in making the selection are: literary and scholastic attainment; fondness and success in outdoor sports, qualities of truthfulness, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy for and protection of the weak, kindness, unselfishness and fellowship; exhibition of moral force of character and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in one's own contemporaries. Qualities of both character and intellect are the most important requirements for a Rhodes Scholarship and these are what the selection Committees will seek.

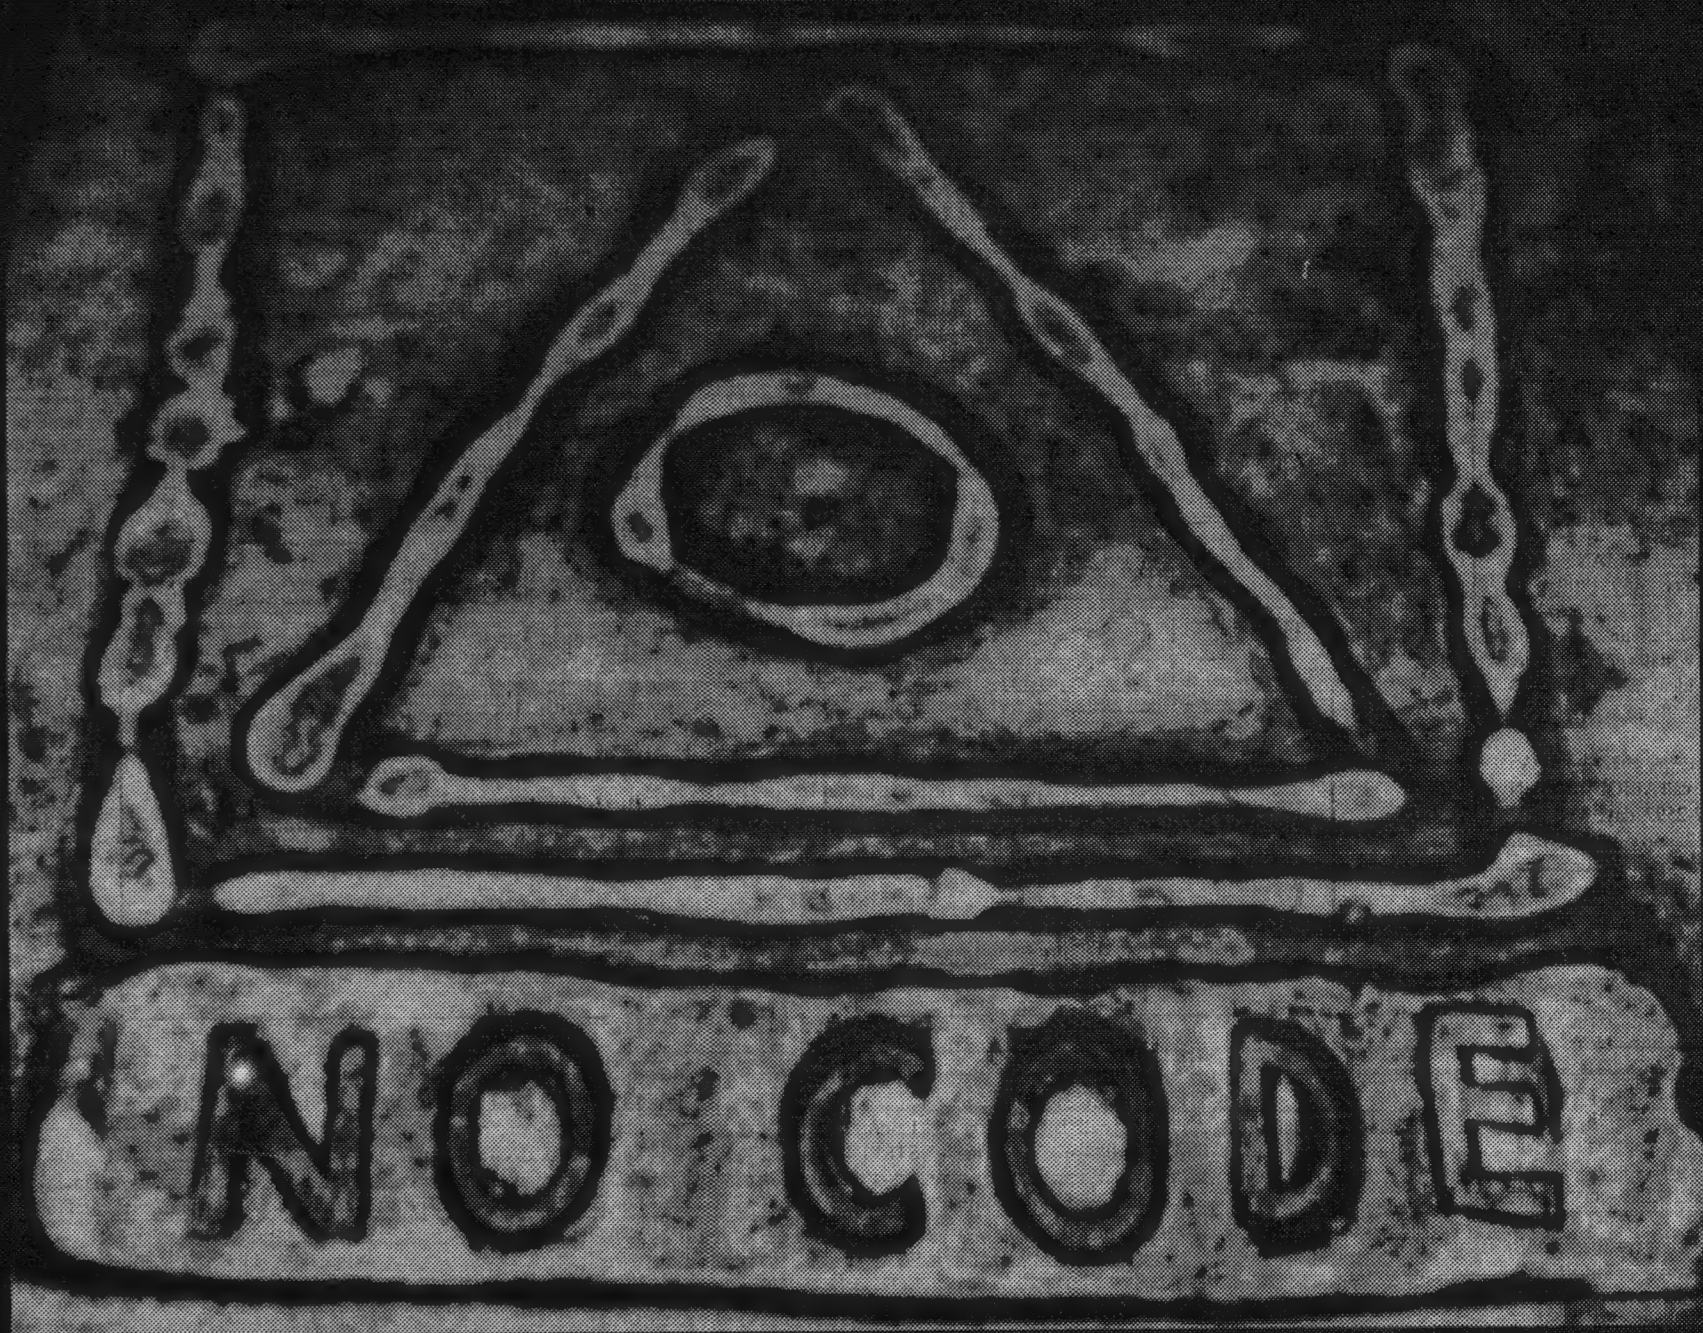

A candidate must:

- 1) Be a Canadian citizen or a person domiciled in Canada
- 2) Have been born between October 2, 1972 and October 1, 1978
- 3) Except for medical students, have received an undergraduate degree before taking up the scholarship

Applications are available in the Student Awards Office, 103 Administration Building. Applications must be submitted to the Student Awards Office, 103 Administration Building, no later than 15 October, 1996.

Note from the Registries:

The purpose of this promotional supplement is to demonstrate to landlords and tenants alike, what we at the SU Housing Registry can offer. Over 15,000 copies of this supplement will be distributed to post-secondary students across the city. For our premiere issue all accommodations currently listed with the SU Housing Registry have been included for free. This means that over 450 accommodations are available to choose from, which gives you a huge variety of places to look at when finding a home. However, we recommend for more current listing information that individuals seeking an accommodation to either visit our office or check out our Home Page.

If you are interested in listing your accommodation with us, please contact us at 492-4212 for further information. We are open from 8:30 AM to 4:30 PM Monday through Friday.

Information Services prepares the Happy Bob Knows

... file which is published in every Tuesday edition of The Gateway. The following guidelines are intended to help you and your group make use of this free service, (for University related organizations), to advertise your events.

To ensure that your event will be included in Happy Bob Knows... send the information to Information Services or drop it off to Rm. 030 A SUB, by the Friday before the issue in which you would like it to appear. Incomplete submissions will not be printed. In addition to the essential information (time, date, location), a brief description, any cost involved, and a number to call for details would also be useful.

Please feel free to contact us at 492-2784 with any questions or suggestions. We look forward to your submissions!

RISE OF THE NORTHERN MOUSE

LIVE MUSIC

Jay Semko
and The Cocharoos
at the Sidetrack Cafe
Saturday, September 13

Jay Semko and the recently christened four-piece band, The Cocharoos, are a welcome addition to the rapidly growing Western Canadian music scene. Semko is actually a familiar voice, being a founding member of the Northern Pikes (the 80s darlings of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan). Semko is continuing, as one of his many artistic pursuits, this summer's cross-Canada tour promoting his exciting new album Mouse.

"Music remains a way to bridge universal gaps and connect people to one another."

—Jay Semko

Saturday's line-up will feature original material from Semko's solo debut Mouse, as well as a few Pikes favorites. Semko is energized by the task of maintaining a balance between the old and the new; he describes his first album after the disbanding of the Northern Pikes as "starting over again with complete creative control over all aspects of a juxtaposition of past credit and fresh originality which Semko found 'creatively fulfilling.'"

Semko thrives on Western Canada's energetic live music scene. He explains that the intimacy of the live club scene enables him to feel closer to his audience, a proximity he felt was lacking in the later days of the Northern Pikes. His new label, Iron Music, is artist-oriented and allows Semko to take artistic reign on the direction of his music, music videos, and other artistic ventures.

Since the "slow dissolving" of the Northern Pikes, Semko has been actively involved not only with Canadian music (by writing and playing the material on Mouse), but also with Canadian film. He credits his work on the Soundtrack to CTV's mountie series "Due South" as inspiring, as it enabled him to move on from his Pike fame and to create the beginnings of Mouse. Semko's "Due South" theme song, along with other original works, will appear on the Sept. 24 release of the TV show's soundtrack album (featuring Blue Rodeo, Ashley MacIsaac, and

Up-and-coming artists get the chance to put their best feet forward in the Fine Arts Building gallery, located right here on campus. This week, the gallery presents two exhibitions by MFA Printmaking students: Marna Bunnell displays her work in a show entitled "The Falling Dolls." At the same time, Tadeusz Warzynski presents his work in "Anatomy of Monument." The F.A.B. gallery is open Tuesday to Friday from 10 to 5 and Sundays from 2 to 5. "The Falling Dolls" and "Anatomy of Monument" close Sunday, September 13.

Sarah McLaughlin). Semko also contributed to the soundtracks to the Canadian films "Paris or Somewhere" and "Strange and Rich."

Mouse itself has spawned an influx of cinematic music videos: "Strawberry Girl," "Times Change," and "Mouse in a Hole" have appeared on Muchmusic and CNN. Semko is anticipating the Sept. 24 release of his "self-interpretative video" for "Adventure on My Breath."

As a Saskatoon-based artist, and as the recently elected vice-president of the Saskatchewan Recording Industry, Semko is an active contributor to the Canadian music and film scenes. He maintains, "No matter where my career takes me, Saskatoon [where he lives with his five-year old son Jackson] is my home and family. I would never relinquish my citizenship or my sense of being Canadian." Semko muses that while technology forces us into a smaller, more connected world, "music remains a way to bridge universal gaps and connect people to one another."

If Semko's energy and thoughtfulness behind his creative vision for Mouse are any indication of its quality, the album will soon find a tremendous reception among Canadian music lovers. Semko's past success and experience, coupled with his new focus and energy should help to shape an eclectic and intriguing performance at the Sidetrack this weekend.

Starring Pruitt Taylor Vince
and Liv Tyler
at The Princess Theatre
September 12—17

Every once in a while a movie comes along that moves the masses with a touching look at everyday life. In its own way Heavy could have been one of those films—after all, it won the award for best direction at the 1995 Sundance Film Festival. While this movie is entrancing, it won't leave you with any answers. Certain elements keep this movie from being truly great, yet the underlying themes strike a nerve with the viewer.

Set in a roadside tavern in New York state, the story revolves around the people working at "Pete and Dolly's." Dolly decides to hire a new waitress named Callie (Tyler), much to the dismay of Delores, the regular jaded waitress (played by a nasty Deborah Harry) and to the delight of Dolly's overweight son Victor (Vince). Victor is a quiet pizza chef who watches the world move through the kitchen food slot, unable to join because of his insecurities about his weight and his mother's watchful eye.

Callie is inexperienced at waiting tables, but takes the job after dropping out of school. Victor works to protect her from Delores' criticism while Callie encourages him to make more of his life. The two strike a silent bond after witnessing each other's personal pains. Callie's boyfriend Jeff (Evan Dando) is a jerk who feels threatened because she is too involved with her deadbeat co-workers. When Dolly becomes ill only Callie shows any sensitivity towards what Victor must be feeling, yet still decides to quit the tavern to return to school and move in with Jeff. She holds off because she doesn't want to leave Victor in a lurch while Dolly is in the hospital, but Victor neglects to inform her of changes in his mother's condition because he knows she would leave. Eventually she does leave and Victor begins to make changes to his life.

The story should be good, and was for the most part, but loose ends and inexplicable scenes take away from the plot. For example, Victor sees a home pregnancy test in Callie's bag, but nothing ever comes of it, nor is it addressed in the story. Dolly and Delores fight about an insinuated affair Delores had with Dolly's then-husband Pete, but this remained confusing and unexplained. Such pieces become more apparent due to the lack of dialogue throughout the film. Extra dialogue was not necessary for the most part, but did cause the viewer to watch more closely to what was going on between the characters.

One point that was somewhat positive about the film is the way Victor's weight was addressed. He was overweight, but his problems dealing with his mother's illness and his inability to change his life give a realistic basis for his need to eat. His quiet obsession for Callie never went to a stalking level which regular Hollywood films would manipulate into a societal reason for his weight. It was dealt with in a sensitive manner.

I'm not sure if I would go see this movie again. Pruitt Taylor Vince is almost worth the cost, because of his ability to project words through his emotions, but the confusing, misplaced fragments remain annoying. Liv Tyler's performance is fine, but not as great as expected from the reviews. Evan Dando sure is a good jerk, and Deborah Harry did great as a bitch. If you can handle slow moving movies then this one is worth a try.

AFRO-NUBIA

LIVE MUSIC

Tarig Abubakar
and the Afro-Nubians
at the Sidetrack Café
September 10-11

The night sky is a cloudless electric indigo, warm breezes caressing prairie grasses in the fields beside the monolithic

Grant MacEwan complex. Neon flares red into the night. And for a twinkling moment of saxophonic bronze and glistening cobalt melanin, the Sidetrack Café is the Sudan.

The Afro-Nubians, heralds of a Sudanese-based, Pan-African fusion, have touched down in our very own Emerald City. Based in Toronto, they're formed around Tarig Abubakar, a Sudanese emigre whose plane separated him from all his luggage and his saxophone when he arrived. It's been a tough road, but the mud, sweat and gears of a third cross-country tour (25 cities this time) are all part of the plan.

"Our music plays a very important role because we're looking for racial harmony," says Abubakar. "If there's no justice, there's no peace and harmony. Our message is very strong, and we're trying to work together and live together."

But in Canada, whether it's Zairean soukous or South African mpaqanga, it's all labelled under the patronisingly general label, "African music." No such label unites Indian and Chinese musics, or Russian and French.

"Afrika is a continent," he explains patiently. "And outsiders are always trying to make it look small, even on the maps. But Afrika has different cultures, backgrounds, environments, beats, musics. They label us here with the drums, you know, the stereotypical drumming, 'African vibes.' But every music in this [modern] world comes from Afrika—rock, blues, jazz, name it. That tells you right away: Afrika has different styles, and that's why the world has different styles. And styles that haven't been discovered yet."

Perhaps because of this array of beauty, Abubakar wishes North American commercial radio programming executives would expand their ranges. "Give other cultures a chance," he implores. "When you meld with other cultures, you always have the best of the best. You'll have a new breed. Putting us aside and controlling everything to a 'mainstream' will just make our work harder and harder, and will persuade us to move somewhere else after building in Canada. But I'm asking programming directors to give two hours a week to the exposure of other beautiful cultures."

The Sidetrack falls to a hush as Abubakar, in sea- and metallic-greens, betopped with a kingly fez of warbled black and gold, takes the stage with his crew. And when he weds mouth to mouthpiece, the desert-dance bold sax of Khartoum mixes with the sparkling guitar of Zaire. Jazz bass tones and dashing congas seduce the crowd to dance floor for that brand new/old world sound.

But unlike most dance bands, the Afro-Nubians don't shy away from social commentary. The first album, Tour to Africa, contained an appeal to end factionalism in the Motherland. And the title track of album number two, The Great Africans, gives thanks to, among others, Minister Farrakhan of the Nation of Islam.

So why, with so many influences and concerns, "The Afro-Nubians"?

"The ancient Egyptians are the Nubians," he states with calm pride, "the people who built the pyramids and a great civilisation. Now in modern history they call them 'ancient Egyptians' and label them different things. But Nubians are the Pharaohs and the people who built the pyramids."

Ride on, Tarig, ride on.

THE SPONTANEITY OF IT ALL

Theatresports
at the Varscona Theatre
every Friday night at 10:00 p.m.

Concentration. Discipline. Professionalism. Live, improvised sketch comedy. All part of a day's work for Rapid Fire Theatre's crack team of improv performers. Strangers to Theatresports may not automatically associate discipline with improv, but Jacob Banigan is eager to come forward and dispel the myths.

"It all has to do with wanting to put on a good show," says Banigan, reclining languidly with his improv-mates Mark Meer and Ron Pederson. "The discipline comes from working with the audience to create funny stories and sticking to them."

Banigan is the Artistic Director of Rapid Fire Theatre, Edmonton's own internationally acclaimed team of improv performers. Away from the stage, neither he nor his associates behave strangely—apart from an occasional and harmless round of gibberish—but on the stage, they are able to execute a series of remarkable—and hilarious—transformations, adapting to suit the needs of anything the audience gives them. Absolutely everything.

"We're known for style here in Edmonton," says Banigan, "other Theatresports teams excel in storytelling, and we can tell a good story too. But it's the process that's the most fun."

Pederson stresses the aspect of sharing with an audience. "You get to participate in making the scenes. You share a more active relationship with the actors."

"And when we screw up in the middle of a scene," adds Banigan, "you get to watch!"

Not that Rapid Fire has made many screw-ups in the recent past. This summer, they participated in (and hosted) an international tourney of improvisational fun. Banigan underplays the competitive aspect of the tournament, saying it was "mostly for fun"—but the fact remains that they placed first, winning the coveted Tundra Cup. Prior to that, Rapid Fire also placed first in another international competition in Atlanta.

"It's mainly because we're not afraid to bomb," confesses Banigan, comparing themselves to another group in the Tundra Cup tournament who "lost control of a scene when they thought they were bombing. We just plow right on and see where the heck it goes."

"But we don't bomb. Much." Counters the laconic Meer.

Now Rapid Fire gears up for its new season of weekly improv shows. Every Friday at ten, they stage a series of informal competitions, starting with the warm-up round, followed by the Danish match (so named because...yes, the Danes invented it), and finally the judged scenes, during which senior performers compete for points. "We're planning on doing a Trainspotting scene," admits Banigan, despite the general ban on planned scenes. "Trainspotting gibberish," adds Meer, launching into a prolonged burst of vaguely Scottish-sounding nonsense.

Favourite scenes from past seasons include the famed Three's Company sketch. "I played Jack and Janet," says Pederson. "I played Krissy," says Meer. "I was out of town," says Banigan. And then there was the British farce sketch. Banigan quotes, in heavy accent, "Ooh, my, Mrs. Haversham's leaving the vase on the mantelpiece, now don't anybody touch it!" Many of their scenes are certainly based on physical humour—indeed, some scenes will be silent, or will require actors to perform one action while verbalizing another.

The excitement of Theatresports comes from never knowing what will happen next. You may catch a spontaneous masterpiece—or the biggest bomb this side of Atlanta. The only way to tell is to be there, as dozens of dedicated fans are, week after week.

Theatresports premieres this Friday at 10 p.m. Tickets are only $6.00 with student I.D.—and if you bring in a copy of this article, Jacob promises "you get to pay exactly the same price as if you don't!"

Good Riddance
with Trigger Happy and Jughead's Revenge
September 10
at the Polish Hall

Toronto's Trigger Happy played for Edmontonton again last night—I think this skate-punk-rawk quintet has been here no less than 612 times before and features ex-SNFU, Deadbeat Backbone bassist Kurt. They were here in support of their latest album I'll Shut Up When you Fuck Off from Sonic Unyon Records, but they also played many tunes off their last LP Killatron 2000.

They've always played like it was the first date of their tour and this night was no exception. It always amazes me that they don't tire or just start going through the motions. They played to about 200 sweaty kids who were running into each other. It was swell! The lead singer, however, was kinda mouthy—but in a good way, making fun of the kids and threatening to call their parents. A good show enjoyed by all.

Returning for the second time (this time to a much bigger audience than at Punk 'n' Junk) was Santa Cruz's Good Riddance, in support of their new album A Comprehensive Guide to Moderne Rebellion. They also did songs off the split 7" they cut with Ignite on Revelation Records.

The music was fast, loud, and hard. The lyrics were socially conscious without being weak. There were no technical screwups, no mindless banter between songs, no rawk star poses, and no masturbatory guitar solos. The guys seemed quite friendly actually. It was "100 per cent pure adrenalin!" to quote Patrick Swayze in some movie. They did a cover of that 80s tune "Come Dancing" by the Kinks, but without 80s neon clothes and hairspray. One of the better shows I've seen in a while. Pluck four hairs off your chest if you missed this show.

The air is thick with spunk and greasy hair, the blaring lights cruise and careen across the Doc-scuffed stage, the vocalist's teeth play the metal edge of the mike—and, with a howling riff, the guitarist gives himself some air. Ah, punk.

A GRIM SPECTACLE

GrimSkunk ready to speak their minds in Edmonton gigs

LIVE MUSIC

GrimSkunk
with The Smalls
September 13 at Public Domain
(licensed)
September 14 at Arts Barns (all-ages)

People turn to music for any number of reasons. Montreal band GrimSkunk uses music as an outlet against the evils of the world. They've got opinions about plenty of injustices in our society and aren't afraid to speak their minds.

"We're like a wild beast," explains guitarist Franz. "We'll let out anything we feel inside and sometimes mainstream people can't handle it." Case in point: the band's newest video was banned from Much Music because it was considered too violent. Lead guitarist Franz can't fathom such an action because "...every day Hockey Night in Canada and the local news show way more violence."

They bring their musical philosophies to Edmonton for two energetic nights this weekend, playing with The Smalls. The band likes to do both licensed and all-ages shows because the crowd's reactions are totally different. "It's stupid to do a show to a specific age group...to exclude people who like us," says Franz. The levels of intensity vary slightly, with licensed gigs being more rambunctious and all-ages shows having more of a positive youthful energy.

The shows themselves should be a mix of emotions, especially since the music is so varied. "The sound of the band is a mix between 70s and singer Joe, and lead guitarist Peter do most of the lyrics. Being from Montreal, the guys do a mix of French and English songs, but most of the songs end up English because the main writers come from English-predominant homes. Their third album, Meltdown, captures part of their live feel, showing how the intensity people have at gigs inspires them in their recording.

Their tour to date has taken them through western Canada and Edmonton will be their last stop in the west. The day after they finish Edmonton, they jet to Brussels for one show, arranged with the belief they could continue the tour without disruptions. Unfortunately, flight schedules will keep them from returning to Canada for another two days.

Edmonton will be a highlight on their tour because of the warm reception they usually receive here. Apparently, the first time they came to Edmonton their show was canceled because the venue was shut down. Sitting in their van on Whyte and 105th, some kids asked who they were and proceeded to buy their CDs and shirts because they looked cool. Not a bad story...but so much to live up to. Come see them for yourself this weekend.

Ocean Colour Scene
Moseley Shoals
MCA

It's no wonder that Noel Gallagher, guitarist for British pop band Oasis raves about Ocean Colour Scene as one of his favourite bands. Ocean Colour Scene sounds and looks an awful lot like Oasis, which is to say that they also sound and look an awful lot like the Beatles.

Don't get me wrong though. Sounding like the Beatles isn't exactly a bad thing. After all, there's about a billion people out there who think the Beatles were a pretty good thing. But the boys of Ocean Colour Scene should learn to take a few more risks and develop a sound of their own.

While most of the songs have a mild to moderate sounding Beatles influence, "The Day We Caught the Train" and "40 Past Midnight," are shameless manipulations of various Fab Four tunes. Originality doesn't seem to be very important to this band right now.

However, Ocean Colour Scene is not without talent or promise. Lead singer Simon Fowler has an expressive and soulful voice that is actually far superior than the whiny voice of Liam Gallagher, the lead vocalist of Oasis.

"The Riverboat Song" is one rare example where Ocean Colour Scene isn't too shy to give a good bite. This is the only song on Moseley Shoals that sounds nothing like the Beatles and dares to be a little dangerous. The lyrics are somber and there's an infectious, slightly harrowing guitar groove that gives the song a dark, haunting flavour. Quite tasty. Too bad there's not more of it on the album.

BEARS FREEZE THE FIRE

Bears down the Oiler Rookies for the first time since 1991

Earl Shortt

No wonder the Oilers couldn't win, they thought it was a diving competition.

by Wade Tymchak
Hell has frozen over.

Get ready to fulfill all those outrageous promises because the closest thing to Hell freezing over just happened. The University of Alberta Golden Bears hockey team, talented but still amateurs, lit an Oil fire as they beat the Edmonton Oiler Rookie's 4-3 last night.

"The guys are pumped in there [the dressing room], I think it's been four or five years since we won," said Bears forward Paul Strand "I'm pumped that we won, I wanted to beat these guys."

If you ask the Bears, though, this is no surprise. The Bears possibly have their best team in five years and are so deep that they're going to probably have to cut veterans. The way the Bears see it, people better get used to them winning.

"I think there wasn't a man in there today who didn't expect to win. Doesn't surprise us that we won, winning this year ain't going to surprise us," said Strand.

"Anytime you play, your goal is to win. We wanted to have a better showing than what we had last year," added Bears head coach Rob Daum.

This ninth edition of the Battle of Edmonton started off as usual with the Oilers trying to intimidate the Bears with their pure size and the Bears not backing down. However, unlike recent contests the Bears stuck it to the Oilers all night long and never went gently into that good night.

"I think the thing that impressed me the most was our competitiveness, we weren't intimidated, we came out and competed hard against a bigger stronger team," said Daum. "I think the key for us was ... that we didn't fold when they scored."

The Bears started off their march to victory with a Cam Danyluk goal and they never looked back. The Bears were led by second year man Aaron Zarowny who scored the Bears next three goals including the game winner in the shoot-out. Every time the Oilers came close Aaron Zarowny took the Bears another step away from them.

"Aaron Zarowny, ... he's looking like Mats Sundin out there," said Strand.

The Bears biggest key to the victory was the same team play, and personal sacrifice, that took the Bears to a 17-10-1 record and a Canada West semifinal berth last year.

"Everybody went really hard and I was really impressed how well we played as a unit considering it was our first game together," said Strand.

"This win kind of bodes well for the future, it looks good if ... we stick to playing good team hockey," added game hero Aaron Zarowny.

The Bears may have beaten a team of potential NHL all-stars but it is still pre-season and this doesn't mean too much. This is just one of those small steps on the way to the Holy Grail.

"This is the first win, we had to win it. Every win is going to be topping the next one ... our ultimate goal this year is no less than a national championship," said Strand.

"Anytime you get a win like this ... against the competition that we had, it helps. If we would have lost I don't think it would have bothered us," added Daum.

"If we want to reach our goal this year I think it's [the win] a Helluva good start for us," added Zarowny.

The Bears next step is Friday at Clare Drake Arena against Concordia College in an exhibition match that is doomed to be a let down in terms of entertainment.

Trivial Trivia

He set a Golden Bears football rushing record for most yards in a single season with 894 in 1975 and followed it up in 1976 with another Golden Bear record for most attempts in a single season with 166. Who is he?

Answer: Dalton Smarsh

Jaroslav Malanowski/File Photo

"I got it, I got it!!!" But, will we ever know for sure if this ever patient and focused Golden Bear football player caught the ball. Think about it, it looks like he "probably" caught it, but once again, did he?

Alberta at stake

Bears and Dinos will write another chapter in the Battle of Alberta Jr. this Saturday

by Wade Tymchak
It's here.

The annual Battle of Alberta Jr. is all set to go this Saturday at Varsity field as the University of Alberta Golden Bears football team and their timeless provincial rivals, the University of Calgary Dinosaurs, prepare to go head-to-head.

losing to the University of Saskatchewan, are still considered the powerhouse in Canada West.

"I think they [Calgary] are a very good football team, watching the film against Saskatchewan it's hard to believe Saskatchewan won the game," said Wilkinson.

The Dinos come into the weekend with virtually the same good football player," added Wilkinson.

The Bears head into this contest with their trademark optimism and feel they're primed for a victory if they can just stick to their game and continue to play as a team. Don Blair or no Don Blair the Bears are ready for this one.

"I think we have a good chance. We had a decent week last week, basically we fell short on a couple plays but other than that it was a close game. We didn't really get out-played, but they [UBC] just had more points than us," said Zaychowsky. "Against Calgary I think if we have a good intense week of practice, I like our chances against Calgary."

"I think if we can go out and play to our capabilities, not better, not tight, or anything else, then I think we have a chance to beat them. I think we're a pretty good team to," added Wilkinson.

The Bears may be a pretty good team, but are they good enough to stand up to the defending Vanier Cup champions. We won't know till the last play of the last quarter of Saturday's game.

Oooo, the tension.

Note: admission to Saturday's game is free to all University of Alberta students

"I think if we can go out and play to our capabilities ... then I think we have a chance to beat them. I think we're a pretty good team to."

— Bears head coach Tom Wilkinson on his team's chances against defending Vanier Cup champion Dinos

"I think the rivalry does create things. Our momentum just seems rise a lot when we play them," said Bears head coach Tom Wilkinson.

The Bears go into this game 0-1 and are desperately looking to stem the seemingly endless losing tide that has followed the Bears from last season, when they were 2-6.

"All I want to do is ... to have a better week than we had last week," said Bears quarterback Sean Zaychowsky.

Meanwhile, the Dinos are the defending Vanier Cup champions and have gotten off to a satisfactory start with a 1-1 record. The Dinos are still very strong and, despite roster that annihilated the Bears 56-8 last October in Calgary. The only significant blow to the Dinos was the loss of star wide receiver Don Blair who signed with the Edmonton Eskimos after being released by the NFL's Chicago Bears.

"[Blair's] a great talent, he's a good football player, and he meant a lot to that team. With him or without him they're still a good football team," said Zaychowsky.

"[Blair's] replacement isn't going to be a Don Blair, but I'll guarantee you that he can catch and he can tackle. He might just not do some of the things as spectacular as Don did, but he's going to be a World Cup of Field Hockey?

by Tim Shoults

Forget that silly little World Cup of Hockey tournament in Montreal, there's hockey to be watched right here in Edmonton this weekend. Field hockey that is.

The University of Alberta Pandas field hockey squad kicks off their season on Friday with an exhibition tournament at Lister field against the U of A Alumni, the University of Calgary and the Saskatchewan provincial team.

"It's going to be a very high-quality tournament," said Pandas field hockey coach Dru Marshall, noting that the Alumni squad has six former Canadian national team players on it and the Saskatchewan side has four.

The tournament is more of a warmup than a do-or-die situation for the Pandas. Several of their top players are resting their injuries and won't see heavy duty.

"I'm not too concerned about the results of this tournament. In fact, I don't care if we lose every game ... what we're going to try to do is give some of the new players a chance to play," said Marshall.

As for the upcoming season, Marshall is very optimistic.

"I think we have the potential to be national champions, it's a question of how we put the pieces together," said Marshall.

Battle of Alberta, not likely

UofC and UofL in town to start Bears soccer season

by Brandice Shostak

It's a Battle of Alberta that shouldn't be much of a battle.

The University of Lethbridge and the University of Calgary soccer teams will be paying a visit to the University of Alberta this weekend to face our own Golden Bears.

The U of A Golden Bear squad is hoping to start the season off right and get ahead in the

A is looking good to take another win away from them this weekend.

"We saw Lethbridge last weekend at our own tournament and although they didn't win a game they were always close. They don't have, perhaps, the advantages we have in terms of numbers, but they are always tough the first game of the season," said Vickery.

The Lethbridge Pronghorns finished at the bottom of the con-

Lethbridge), so we have to bear down to be sure we get two good results this weekend," said Vickery.

The Bears dropped their first home game to Calgary last season, but won the next two times the teams met. The Bears also faced the Dinos in last year's CWUAA final game. U of A took the game by a score of 6-2 to advance to the CIAU nationals.

"Calgary is usually a much tougher proposition [than Lethbridge], so we have to bear down to be sure we get two good results this weekend."

— Bears soccer coach Len Vickery on the Bears competition during the opening weekend of CWUAA soccer standings early on.

"We had a slow start last year, it didn't click until maybe the second or third weekend. The first game of the season nobody's lost, so everyone thinks they're a contender," said Golden Bears head coach Len Vickery.

The Golden Bears will face U of L Friday at 4 p.m. at Varsity Field. Last year the Bears came away victorious both times they faced Lethbridge and with 14 returning players this year, the U of ference of six teams last year while Alberta ended the season in first place.

Sunday's game against the U of C Dinosaurs should be considerably tougher. U of C finished the 1995-96 season right behind Alberta in Canada West with a record of 6-2.

Of course, the traditional Battle of Alberta rivalry will play a role in the game against Calgary.

"Calgary is usually a much tougher proposition (than

Opening their season at home, the Golden Bears are hoping for some fan support and they certainly deserve it after finishing second in the nation last year.

The Golden Bears play the University of Lethbridge at 4 p.m. Friday afternoon at Varsity Field, and the University of Calgary at 3 p.m. on Sunday.

Note: admission to Friday's game against Lethbridge is free to all U of A students

It ain't Ladybugs, it's flu bugs

Flu hits Panda soccer team with season set to begin

by Brandice Shostak

Unfortunately for the U of A Pandas soccer team soccer season this year coincides with flu season.

Five players from the University of Alberta team, four of them starters, have spent the last two days in bed with a flu bug they picked up while on tour in Tennessee.

The timing is especially bad as the Pandas open their season at home this weekend against the University of Lethbridge and the University of Calgary.

Friday will see the Pandas coming up against the Lethbridge Pronghorns who were 3-7 for the 1995-96 season.

Tracy David, head coach for the Pandas, sees Lethbridge as an improved team who will provide a challenge for the Pandas this year.

"I think Lethbridge will be stronger than they have been in the past, they have a goalkeeper finally. Lethbridge is a very good, disciplined team," said David.

David sees taking an early lead to be the key to beating Lethbridge.

"You don't want to get into a battle with them where they have kept the score at 0-0, because they're the type of team that will hold you, hold you, right until they score," David said.

Calgary will be a completely different story on Sunday. The U of C Dinosaurs finished one spot ahead of Alberta in Canada West and the U of A was unable to take a win off of Calgary all season. However, Calgary has lost some vital players from last year's squad.

"They've lost a few key players, but on the other hand they have some very good first-year players. I think that their starting 11 are going to be good, but I think their bench is going to be a little bit weak," said David. "I think overall, player for player, we have a better team. But certainly it's going to be a battle."

David doesn't see a problem in playing two different teams in one weekend.

"I think it's better for us to see two different teams as this again no problem', and then the other team comes out and thumps you," explained David.

The Pandas should do well if they are able to keep their moti-opposed to seeing the same team twice because you don't usually have a problem with motivation. Sometimes I think if you play the same team twice and if you've beaten them the game before you might sort of sit on your heels and think 'Oh well, we can do vation this weekend.

Their home opener is against the University of Lethbridge Pronghorns on Friday at 2 p.m. at Varsity Field.

 tional team players like Chris Hunter and Carla Somerville, both of whom were absent last year due to Olympic qualifying. "I would say that this is the first year that I've coached here that we've had a lot of experienced field hockey players," said Marshall. The Pandas look to improve on last year's fourth-place finish, but Marshall defended last year's results: "We were a very young team last year... if you look at it from a results perspective, it might seem to be a disappointing year, but I think it was a really good learning experience for those young kids." The tournament gets under way this Friday at Lister field, behind Lister Hall and the Jubilee Auditorium. It'll be better than watching LaFontaine and Lindros go at it.

HoneyBunch—you are everything to me. Hey chipmunk, apparently you didn't cure asthma this summer so no tennis. You sure? BRB

Chippers, Hawkster and Giraffey the party animals—together again this Friday at the FIJI ISLANDER!!

Happy Birthday Jen! Don't celebrate too much... these are memories worth keeping. Love, D Krissie Lee; You are all that I wish I could be!! By the way—how's your white-socked Dirt farmer?

Asshole who stole my Camera: Fuck you. I hope you contract several STD's and die a painful festering death.

3 Rez Ladies. We hope to see you at Friday's party in the park. One block east of Law, remember? WOW Dance friends.

Vince(?), gave you handbooks Wed 4-7 (Butterdome), talked to you at WOW (Castlebrooks), liked flirting, would like more. Reply here. M.

Hey Lunar! Happy fimo girl. I love you. C'S'R

Julia, please don't bug me anymore. I have enough people following me around as it is. —Shadow

Welcome back brothers. Onwards and upwards for another strong year. FWD.S.Machine

Dating sucks... I wanna get married. Any takers? —Medicine Man

Andrea—English 101 last year. U smiled at me and you are so fine. From the ASTRO BOY

You wouldn't recognize a TLF if it painted itself purple and danced on a piano singing "TLFs are here again!" —B.A.

Beautiful brunette on Strathcona bus Tues 5pm, near the back. I like the new look! Dazzling eyes! —Somi

If anybody saw a car which backed into a blue/black sportbike, in front of the Sugarbowl on Sept 11, please contact TLF (I need a witness for the cops)

P.S. To the one who did it (Jennifer)... come to me before they come to you... capiche? MN

Paul—Je te dis bonjour! Ca va? —Sava

Animal Girl—Pointing a finger I'm counting on loving you over and above the passion—X-ray Man

Ross "Smooching Woman": Zah-zah-zah!! You can get a job anywhere with "Aughh, Goat!" So SHIT, FUCK, DAMN! Bambi

To Spanish looking girl on the 37 bus on Sept. 3 who smiled at me. If interested, meet me for coffee at Power Plant on Monday @ 6:00. Guy wearing the green shirt

Jacqueline: you wanted a retraction for what I said about Celine Dion. This is as close as you'll get. I love you anyways.

To my sugar-baby: Keep the sweet stuff coming. Big Daddy

Peaches: thanks for... whatever. Love always, your sweet Paella.

When I was home after my first tour of duty it was worse... I'd wake up and there'd be nothing...
